WHEELING, NOVEMBER 15, 1892.

Held the Organization.

West Republicans never were organized as they were this year. The organization was not perfect because some of the counties could not be induced to take hold in time, but it was admirable and, in spite of defeat, it showed its effectiveness.

If this had been a Republican year the Republican majority in West Virginia would have exceeded all expectation. If it had not been for the excellent organization a year that swept Illinois into the Democratic column and drove Ohio to the official count to find how she stands, would have given the Democrats West Virginia by two or three times the present plurality.

It is the organization that wins. A state cannot be organized in a day. The Republican state committee will do what it can to hold the organization it has made. The Republican masses of the state can do more.

Already permanent clubs are forming. Marshall county, we believe, deserves the credit for the first move on this line. Ohio county stands second. Doubtless there are more.

There should be at least one strong club in every county. It will be an immense gain and a splendid start in the next campaign if we can have a live club in every school district.

Let the clubs meet often for social intercourse and to discuss the questions of the day, keeping in touch with the interesting history which the Democratic party is going to make, and with the best Republican thought on the subject. It will be a good way to spend the long winter evenings.

Keep up your organization, Republicans of West Virginia, and let the INTELLIGENCER know what you are doing.

The convention of Roman Catholic archbishops, soon to be held in New York, will be one of the most notable ecclesiastical gatherings ever seen in this country. It will embrace men eminent for their position and their learning and clothed with very high authority.

Afraid of Their Party.

The panicky Democratic howl for an extra session of Congress as soon as Mr. Cleveland takes his seat is making the cold chills run up the backs of some who contributed to the victory. The New York Herald is doing what it can to bang the life out of the scheme. It is so much opposed to an extra session that it is betrayed into making admissions which it was careful not to make before the election. Hear the Herald for its cause:

"The people don't want the McKinley law repealed. It must be shown of its worst features, but that will all come in good season. To repeal the law or to change Congress on to tamper hastily with its provisions would disturb business, depress stocks, unsettle values, upset industries and throw the country into such a panic as it has not experienced since 1857."
"The people have just won a great victory, and they don't want it turned into a great disaster by excited politicians, eager free traders, youthful editors, and noisy orators or meddling newspapermen. We have just passed through one of the most intense excitement, and don't want another forced upon us."
"For heaven's sake give us a rest! Let things take their own course. Let well enough alone."

"The business men of the country don't want an extra session. The working masses don't want it. The people don't want it. They all know too well that haste, ill-considered, precipitate legislation can only lead to trouble and disaster."

We trust Mr. Cleveland and his advisers will be wise enough to see this and patriotic enough to act accordingly. If they yield to the free trade forces and hot-headed politicians' ravens for spoils who will rush to Washington for an extra session and the repeal of the McKinley law there will not be a corporal's guard of the Democratic party left in 1896. The Republicans will be returned to power by a tidal wave that will dwarf the Democratic landslide of 1892 into insignificance.

"The people don't want the McKinley law repealed." This is odd. The Democratic party has denounced that law as a fraud, promised to repeal it, and on this the party has been literally hurled into power head-over-heels.

And suppose an extra session is called—can't the Democrats, with their full swing, be trusted not to wreck the country? Is it necessary to admonish them in this hysterical way? Won't they have the assistance of Wayne McVeagh and other annex statesmen to keep them from falling into the ditch?

The overwhelming character of the Democratic triumph is not less remarkable than this Democratic apprehension that the party may proceed with undue haste to go radically wrong and forthwith cut its throat by crippling the business of the country.
It seems to be the feeling of conservative Democrats that the best thing their party can do is to follow closely in the Republican wake, seeking its future triumphs on the well established lines of Republican policy.

This is all very creditable to the Republican party, but where does it leave the victorious organization?

VICTORIA WOODHULL MARTIN, the woman's candidate, has neglected to demand a recount.

The Conduct of the Election.

The canvass of the Ohio county returns has gone far enough to warrant the inference that there must have been gross irregularities at almost every poll, and the responsibility rests on the election officers. This was the result of ignorance or of carelessness.

Nor is it strange that these things happened under a law for the first time in operation, untried by the voters and the election officers, and in many of its features cumbersome. One of the remarkable developments is that sample ballots were voted.

It is not easy to explain how the officers could allow this. It is their business to furnish the voter with his ballot, endorsed by the poll clerks, and to see that the ballot brought out of the booth and offered for the box is the ballot properly provided according to the law.

What is to be done with a ballot of this kind, is a question to be determined. It does not seem fair that the ballot should be lost through the ignorance or carelessness of the election officers. Other curious features of the election are revealed in the story of the canvassing.

Perhaps it will all go better next time, but the irregularities of the late election raise some interesting points that will have to be passed on.

The Prohibitionists are much encouraged by the vote they polled. It is true that they have helped to put in office many aspiring Democrats. And the liquor traffic goes on as before.

Quarreling Over the Honors.

The returns are not all in, but already there is a long list of Democrats and of Democratic newspapers modestly claiming the individual credit of the landslide and gently elbowing out of the way almost everybody else as a base pretender.

For example, the New York World not only shows how it accomplished the glorious result but proves conclusively that its neighbor, the Sun, floured only as a base-born marplot. The Herald, also, did it all by itself.

If the Democratic brethren will kindly keep up this howl of harmony the boys on the other side will be duly grateful. You don't hear Republicans and Republican newspapers madly contending for the credit of doing it, do you?

THINKING Democrats are awfully afraid of the threatened extra session. Well they may be.

Now that the Democrats are to go in and to put their own on guard, we read in the New York Times, a Cleveland organ, that "there is an imperative need of overhauling the smaller consulates of the United States in Mexico, and the salaries are most of them too small to secure the services of competent men." So long as the consuls were Republicans the compensation was thought to be high enough. What a world of change this is.

The Russian artist who fooled the Washington authorities on the statistics of Alaska should return promptly to his native land, where the lively knout is sometimes applied to persons who are smart beyond their generation. He is too enterprising for this slow country.

It is noted that with the exception of Mr. Wanamaker the cabinet officers lost their states. The cabinet officers had not much to do with it. But we recall that Mr. Cleveland had two cabinet officers from his own state, and in 1888 the three of them could not hold that state, it was so hot.

Pittsburgh is at last to put up street signs, so that the wayfarer man though sober may not be forced to think that he has been out with the boys. Another improvement would be to provide the policemen with tongues. In that case a visitor might occasionally get a little information without a city map, a directory and a commercial agency report.

WEAVER is confident that he carried Alabama. He may be equally confident that he will not get the electoral vote of that state. He will get all he is entitled to in the north, but the south is a preserve on which only Democrats may hunt.

BREAKFAST BUDGET.

Cheese is claimed to be taught in all the Austrian public schools.

General Sherman's old home in St. Louis is to be sold at auction.

Reno, Nevada, has a brass band that is composed of sixteen "beautiful young women."

The output of the cigar factories at Reading, Pa., so far this year has been over 100,000,000.

A Wells (Me.) fisherman caught a catfish last week that had a good-sized potato in its stomach.

The interest in the election seems to be coming mainly from Democratic principle.—Washington Star.

The South Sea Islanders are claimed to make an intoxicating drink from corn and decayed fish.

Michigan lumbermen carry cedar knots in their pockets as a cure and also as a preventive of rheumatism.

In a temple in India there is preserved and worshipped a tooth claimed to have once been in the jaw of Buddha.

General Sheridan's sword, which he is said to have used while at Fort Yamhill, Oregon, is reported to be in the possession of an Oregon Indian.

Five or six winters ago "a petrified frog" was found in a quarry near Elmira, N. Y., which measured two feet eight inches in length, and, it is claimed, weighed over a hundred pounds. It is believed to be the largest specimen of fossilized frog ever discovered.

The proposed underground electric railway in London, if sanctioned, will be 15 feet under the Thames, 63 feet beneath Regent's Park, and 85 feet below Oxford street.

A number of remarkable figures of hammered silver, representing men, women and animals, have been exhumed from a peat bog in Jutland, Denmark, and placed in the National Museum at Copenhagen.

The "school age" is a variable quantity in this country. In six of the states and territories children are admitted to the public schools at the age of 4 years; in nineteen, at 5; in twenty, at 6; in three, at 7, and in one (Texas), at 8.

German piano manufacturers are reported to be in great distress. Formerly they sold many instruments in Russia, but the present duty of $100 on a grand piano and $80 on an upright has almost put an end to the export of pianos.

Philip Schlemmer, of Brenham, Tex., fell from a wagon some time ago, landed on a stump and broke his neck. He was considered as good as dead and all his effects were sold. He has now entirely recovered and is at present enjoying the best of health.

The frizzled glass threads from which cloth is woven are said to surpass in fineness, not only the finest cotton, but even the thread of the silkworm's cocoon, their softness and elasticity being even greater than that of manufactured silk "lint."—Boston Globe.

It is claimed that the first pig iron in this country was successfully made at Colebrookdale, Pennsylvania, about 1725. The old mansion, built in 1730 by the iron master, Thomas Potts, is still standing in an excellent state of preservation on what is now known as the Gable farm, of 103 acres.

In many countries the rainbow is spoken of as being a great bent pump or siphon tube, drawing water from the earth by mechanical means. In parts of Russia, in the Don country, and also in Moscow and vicinity, it is known by a name which is equivalent to "the bent water pipe."—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

An Englishman has invented a rubber stud for floors and stairs. It consists of a small iron plate with nail projecting from the under surface, around which rubber is molded. It is fixed in place by a blow of the hammer, the advantage being that when worn it can be easily removed and replaced by others.

There was a man in our town,
And wondrous wise was he;
And with an axe and man, whisks,
He once cut down a tree.

And when he saw the tree was down,
With all his might and main,
He straightway took another axe
And cut it up again.

In old time variation was supposed to be a special property of the seed to get new varieties; now it is found that buds will vary as well as seeds, and many of the popular flowers in use by florists have been raised from branches which have "sported," to use a technical term, from other kinds. It is further found that even bulbets will vary in the same way. Many ferns produce these on the fronds, and M. G. J. Lowe has recently recorded the fact that he has raised new varieties of ferns directly from these bulbets.—Median's Monthly for November.

NEW TRIAL GRANTED.

A Celebrated Case to Be Tried Over Again in November, 1896.

County Clerk John C. Burns to-day received by mail from a Republican friend who is an attorney the following interesting and amusing document, which he has exhibited:

Benjamin Harrison vs. Grover Cleveland. Motion for new trial.

Now comes the plaintiff and asks the court to set aside the verdict of the people and grant a new trial for the following reasons:

1. The verdict is against sound sense and the general custom.
2. Newly discovered thunder and boulder, which could not with reasonable persuasion have been used at the trial.
3. The court erred in admitting certain ballots, which had the cross in the wrong circle.
4. Fraud perpetrated on the American people by Democratic liars and their henchmen.
5. Plaintiff was taken by surprise by the actions of Ohio and Illinois, whereas, had the claims of said states been set up, plaintiff would have hustled.
6. The verdict is excessive, and greatly exceeds the amount of defendant's claim.
7. One-half the jury was drunk on the day after the verdict was rendered.
8. Certain of the jurors had formed and expressed opinions before the case was submitted to them.

T. H. CARTER,
Attorney for Plaintiff.
Filed November 10, 1892.

JOHN WANAMAKER,
Clerk.
Journal entry: J. 1892. p. 11. Motion sustained, the new trial to take place four years from the date of the last trial.

MAKE BELIEVE.

After Cary in the Baltimore News
Kiss me though you make believe,
Kiss me though I almost know
You are kissing to deceive.
Let the tide out and break
Backward ere it rise and break,
Only for poor pity's sake.

Give me of your flowers one leaf,
Give me of your smiles one smile;
Backward roll this tide of grief
Just a moment, though the while
I should feel and almost know
You are trifling with my woe.

Whisper to me sweet and low:
Tell me how you sit and weave
Dreams about me, though I know
It is only make believe!
Just a moment, though the plain
You are jesting with my pain.

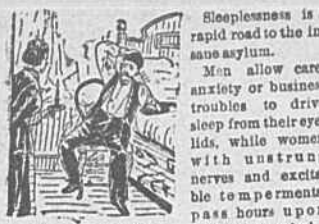

QUINCY troubled me for twenty years. Since I started using Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil have not had an attack. The Oil cures sore throat at once. Mrs. Letta Conrad, Standish, Mich., Oct. 24, '83.

A Little Girl's Experiences in a Lighthouse.
Mr. and Mrs. Loren Trescott are keepers of the government lighthouse at Sand Beach, Mich., and are blessed with a daughter, four years old. Last April she was taken down with measles, followed with a dreadful cough and turning into a fever. Doctors at home and at Detroit treated her, but in vain, she grew worse rapidly, until she was a mere "handful of bones."—Then she tried Dr. King's New Discovery, and after the use of two and a half bottles was completely cured. They say Dr. King's New Discovery is worth its weight in gold, yet you may get a trial bottle free at Logan Drug Co.'s drug store.

CAUSE FOR ALARM.

Insomnia a Serious Condition.

"I CAN'T SLEEP."
Insomnia, restless misery.
What wonder that there are so many shattered nerves, tired brains and debilitated bodies, when we consider the thousands who pass sleepless or disturbed nights, and rise mornings feeling indescribably miserable, dragged out, with tired limbs, exhausted energies, nerveless and ambitious.

It is maddest folly to use opium, morphine or chloral. There is one sure way to cure sleeplessness—use Dr. Green's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. This wonderful remedy is nature's own sleep producer, and is perfectly harmless, being made from pure vegetable medicines. For sale by druggists, $1.00.

"WOULD BE WELL IF I COULD SLEEP."
It soothes, calms and quiets the weakened, irritable and over-wrought nerves, producing perfect repose and refreshing, natural sleep; at the same time it builds up the shattered nerves and gives renewed life, strength and vigor to the system. Use it, you who are sleepless.

"I can cheerfully recommend Dr. Green's Nervura blood and nerve remedy as being a good remedy for sleeplessness. Having been troubled in this way for three years, and objecting seriously to opiates, I have used Dr. Green's Nervura blood and nerve remedy with great benefit. I have also recommended the Nervura to many of my friends, who have been much benefited by its use."

"Mrs. G. H. Hill,
"11 Union St., Concord, N. H."

Dr. Green, the successful specialist in curing all forms of nervous and chronic diseases, 35 W. 14th street, New York, can be consulted free, personally or by letter. Call or write him about your case, or send for symptom blank to fill out, and a letter fully explaining your disease, giving advice, etc., will be returned free.

A HOT BATH.

And Its Advantage—Throw Drugs to the Dogs and Follow This Advice.

Strange, isn't it? That the more remote blessings are, the more precious they appear. Harper's Bazar says:

Curiously enough the many warm springs throughout the country are always well patronized, yet not one person in ten is at all conscious of the healing to be found at the rim of the home hotwater faucet. Half the nervous troubles that women suffer from can be relieved without the drugs to which so many of them fly; and did they only know or realize that fact, there would be fewer tragic tales of homes wrecked and lives destroyed by habits acquired through constant resort to the chemists for ease from fatigue and sleeplessness.

If she who when morning comes, feels her head heavy and her eyes burn, her back bone a long streak of hot pain, and all existence a wretched, despairing burden, would get into a hot bath instead of resorting to bromides, or tonics of which alcohol forms the main ingredient, she would experience a relief as entire and certain as anything the doctors could prescribe, and take the remedy with no fear of the inevitable reaction from the drug's potency. The bath should be hot, and not merely warm, and should bring the blood pinkly to the skin's surface. A tepid bath is of no value in such cases, for the pores are to be opened thoroughly, the blood hastened in its circulation, and the whole body warmed through and through, and this can only be done when the water is steaming, and is too hot to be entirely comfortable. It should be a full bath, high enough in the tub to submerge one very thoroughly, and there is no hurry to be permitted in the use of it. Sit, or rather lie in the water with limbs relaxed until it loses the best part of its heat, and unless one is of very nervous and feeble temperament, it is well to stand up in the bath, and turning on the cold water faucet, sponge one's self off hastily before the thorough rubbing down with a Turkish towel that should complete the cure. This will be found wonderfully exhilarating and restful of the tired nerves, and the cold sponging removes the danger of taking cold, to which many are sensitive after a hot bath. After very great fatigue or nervous strain, such as sitting up through the night with the sick, a day of great excitement or effort, or after an exhausting journey, this hot bath will be found a delicious experience; and there are few cases of insomnia—unless arising from some very unusual cause—that will not yield to the same remedy.

To Prevent the Grip.

Or any other similar epidemic, the blood and the whole system should be kept in healthy condition. If you feel worn out or have "that tired feeling" in the morning, do not be guilty of neglect. Give immediate attention to yourself. Take Hood's Sarsaparilla to give strength, purify the blood and prevent disease.
